Thanksgiving Reveries.

For many years, eye, almost since first this country had a name, it has spent one day in the year, after harvest time, for thanksgiving and praise to the Great Father of the universe for His loving kindness and tender mercies.

FEW HERE KNOW THIS.

When an eminent authority announced in the Seranton (Pa.) Times that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease, rheumatism, with just common everyday drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to his claims.

This is the harvest time for thanks. True, there have been trials, calamities in some places, homes destroyed, losses and sorrows, but taking the country over our blessings have been many and far outnumbered the dark appalling things of life.

It has come to be that we hear too much about fasting and too little about thanksgiving. The housewife whose menu reads: Oysters on the Half Shell, Tomato Soup, Celery, Roast Turkey, Creamed Potatoes, Pickles, Baked Sweet Potatoes, Fickles, White Bread, Brown Bread, Cranberry Sauce, Orange Tarts, Mince Pie, Pumpkin Pie, Cake, Fruit, Coffee.

Let us be thankful that however difficult and full of temptation life may be, we are given wisdom that settles for daily living. No part of man's nature is as strengthened by right choice as the conscience. It is the still small voice that we must listen for, and the citizen we hear it and obey, the clearer and fuller is his fate. It is the delicate intimation that is dilled and finally destroyed by the dings of evil. Let us be thankful that most men are blessed with the tightness of heart to do good and to deal fairly by their neighbors.

Boys are not naturally selfish, and every mother who has not a willing obedient helper in her boy, is herself to blame, and must not only suffer the consequences of her mistake herself but the future wife will have to bear the blame. For your own sake, and

DON'T TALK HARD TIMES.

Good times depend not only upon the great laws of supply and demand but also upon the maintenance of public confidence. The moment business men get scared and people begin to talk hard times, distrust spreads like wild fire.

These precautions spread. Distrust, fear, anxiety, and a feeling of uncertainty, like the rising tide of gossip, sweep like wildfire all over the country. Soon everybody is talking hard times; all are influenced by the contagion of the perpetual fear of suggestion.

Such a condition of things began with the recent investigation and prosecution of certain great combinations of capital. After the investigation these great concerns began to retrench, and when the whole country caught the spirit of caution, stocks began to drop, business houses to fail, and the first we know there was a sort of a mental business panic, a condition wholly uncaused for, unwarranted.

There is no real condition in this country today to produce hard times, no warrant for them but the people's talk. When people are scared money is always tight. It was tight in the midst of the most prosperous times we have ever had, that men began to whisper, "Hard times are coming."

As a matter of fact the actual condition of our great nation was never better than it is today. There are no real hard times among us, and there are not going to be any. Just as quickly as public confidence is restored everything will go on as before.

How little we realize how much the general mental attitude of business men has to do with the good times and hard times! Prosperity is in the air when everybody has confidence. When there is no doubt or uncertainty in the public faith, times are good. But let the least doubt creep into the minds of a few prominent business men; let a few scattered speculators prophesy that hard times are upon us; let but the mist of doubt cloud the public confidence, and everything begins to lighten up.

Business rests so largely upon confidence, that anything which disturbs it affects the market and business very quickly. Every little while there is a great run on a bank, which proves to be perfectly safe, but because a rumor was set afloat that it was shaky. Best news houses have sometimes come to grief in a similar way. A rumor without a particle of foundation might cause a run on the Bank of England.

Unfavorable rumors spread with more rapidly than favorable ones, and they keep increasing in volume like a snowball everybody adding a little to it and embellishing what has received. It is a strange propensity of human nature which likes to exaggerate. It news a person's or a firm's misfortune - Exchange

THE CRIPPLING POWER OF ILL HEALTH.

Everywhere we see bright, well-educated, young men and women, with splendid brains, crippled by some physical defect, and mocked by great ambitions which they can never realize. Thousands live unhappy lives because they are conscious that they can only transmit a small fraction of their real ability into their work.

There is, perhaps, no greater disappointment in life than not to realize one's ambition. To be conscious of great mental power without the strength to utilize it to be haunted by aspirations which we know must die in us for the want of strength to realize them is one of the saddest things of life.

It seems mockery to have that which we cannot use to advantage. We know splendid writers who can work only an hour or two a day, and then are completely exhausted. All the energy they can generate in twenty-four hours, they can run off in an hour or two writing. Tens of thousands of people can work only three or four hours a day, then they have to give up and lie down, or go to bed and wait for more energy.

How many thousands of homes have been wrecked by poor health! What tragedies have been wrought by shattered nerves and broken-down constitutions, even in the lives of good-intentioned people! "Mentally able but physically weak" would make a good epitaph on the tombstone of many a failure.

The brain gets a great deal of credit with respect to the stomach and to the muscles and the lungs. A single talent in strong physique, with a good will, lack of it all, will accomplish more in life than ten talents in a weak body. What we need is strong, vigorous vitality which will stand a tremendous strain.

Who can measure the disaster to the individual and to the world which is caused by botched work, due to ill health? Health is the very mainspring of life, for, without it, dispositions are ruined, lives are darkened and made wretched, efficiency is destroyed, freshness and enthusiasm and the zest which comes from normal living are all gone. What a blessing it is to feel that equilibrium that splendid balance which exists between a sound mind and a sound body.

There are probably very few people in the world who could not be perfectly well and strong if they had known the secret of right thinking in their youth and had practiced it through life. That a right life must follow right thinking is as scientific as the law of mathematics. Unfortunately, some of us were not taught this. All sorts of disconcert, weak, criminal thoughts played havoc with our minds before we learned what devastation was being effected in us. Habit had so fixed the trend of life, and the tendencies of action, that we were almost slaves to it and to our environment.

If we only knew the secret of thinking ourselves into health, into a successful career, or how to surround ourselves with a healthful, prosperous atmosphere, we should know how to solve the greatest problem of life. - Collected.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1907.
WORK ON ODEON HALL
NEARLY COMPLETED.

Carpenters, plumbers etc. have had the right of way in Odeon Hall for several weeks and the result is that Bethel has to-day, or will have shortly, one of the finest halls to be found in any country town in the State of Maine.

New steel ceiling has been put in, the stage considerably enlarged and very much improved and the gallery has been set off by sliding doors so it may be used when occasion calls and closed at other times.

In the past it has been somewhat difficult for a speaker or actor to make his audience hear in the rear of the hall, owing to the construction of the stage. It is believed that this difficulty has been overcome by bringing the platform several feet out into the hall. The same difficulty has also been benefited by shutting off the large gallery.

It is also proposed to remove the center stairs which lead to the gallery and thus make it possible to add a wire office room in the space now occupied by the stairs. This will be another desirable improvement in view of the fact that we are at present decidedly wanting in offices to rent, not one to be had at any price. This last improvement will not be made until the winter, but the officers in the hall have it in mind and intend to do the work very soon.

But one thing more is needed and the hall is complete, and that is electricity. The one thing not only need to make Odeon Hall complete but needed to bring the village up to date. At present the electric light plant at the NEWS office is the only one in the village, but it is hoped and confidently expected that something may show up before many weeks, at least that will make it possible for Bethel to be lighted.

BY THE WAY

Is there anyone who did not fail to observe that neither the snow, stars nor moon with her moon gave us anything but total darkness to render our way home in the Thursday and Friday evenings? On the former evening everything was slippery and we all indeed cut pretty specimens as would have been retained had we been seen slipping and sliding from one side of the street to the other, to dark some so dark that we could not see our own faces.

The moon's schedule for tonight is bright when it is conjuncted on a good watch's hand, but darker than a "nigger's" peak at the lights should be lighted. The moon should also be lighted on Monday night, when the moon does not rise until 11 a. m. or supposed to be in their decayed form.

Will the electric light man please take note that the people would be much better served and their better satisfied if the lights could be lighted on their speciality their moon expected tonight and a fine upon some of these dark evenings when the moon is expected to appear up and moon at 9 o'clock or somewhere thereabouts. As there suggested that would apply with special emphasis on Monday nights, if people want rights of all we need tonight.

CANINE

OKLAHOMA A STATE.

Henceforth there will be 46 stars in the United States flag, the forty-sixth state being Oklahoma from the union of Oklahoma and Indian Territories. The state was officially a state on Saturday, November, 16th, when President Roosevelt issued his proclamation announcing that Oklahoma had fulfilled the conditions of the enabling act of June 16th, 1906. The state government has been set up at Guthrie.

It is worthy of note that Oklahoma is the largest state in population ever admitted to the Union, its population being over one and one-half millions. She is the twenty-fifth state in population and has five representatives to the National Congress, and these with two senators will add seven votes to the electoral college, making a membership for 1908 of 483 instead of 476, thus requiring 242 votes for a choice of president and vice-president instead of 239 as in the last election. The Democratic party will be strengthened by these additions as four of the representatives who have been elected and the two senators to be elected are Democrats while the Republicans from that state will be represented in the lower house by one lone star.

IT PROVED TO BE A WINDLESS CYCLONE.

And Won More Lameness Than Laurels.

Those who were required in last week's NEWS that a fearful cyclone was about to strike Bethel, and advised that the only place of safety would be in the "City Palace" of Bethel Academy, and who looked that admission saw the cyclone in all their pretended fury, but a very notable feature was the lack of wind, for they were indeed Windless Cyclones. It is understood that one of the cyclones however, is studying up a device whereby it can carry a packet of compressed air with him on his next appearance, and is confident that such a supply of wind, supplanting that which is already had and that which is to be acquired by team work, will enable the cyclone to sweep Bethel's Academy team out of existence the next time they are invited to the G. A. gymnasium.

There was one good feature but it was a bad one, and that was the crowd which the gymnasium has better filled than upon the occasion. They had evidently come prepared to get themselves into confusion over Cyclone matters, but the victors were out of the head to prompt caution yielding or in any occasion presented them selves, however, and it is reported that the crowd reached a feverish camp in the Academy grounds and a crew was organized and the entire night spent hunting for water.

The above mentioned demonstration was made on two occasions when two cyclones each got a goal. There is no question but that the occasion was worthy of demonstration, at least the nature though so and it is felt that up as that they have walked on while they were at that end of the hall, the other started out well but had several strokes knocked from their line by the wind blowing by being referred by a newspaper, and bigger than a great of water, that the goal which had no real effect, converted into a goal which should have been a goal instead of a goal, on the grounds that the cyclone in question was only half a mile before the starting, so that cyclone is now down to the end on a pair of the staff, but they that were attempted to transfer a victory were out of order, and all on account of that beautiful "Toughie".

"Toughie" is a fine fellow, he is a good fellow, but that beautiful wind on Monday night, he don't see any more of it.

Will the cyclones return the "City Palace" where on the head of Bethel, get a new round of letters from the cyclone, and on the way, why not, cyclone, answered "you bet" to the one you study a picture of the one you and the great goal before. To describe the game as impossible. The

November--
The Dining Room, 1907

Your thirty days of preparation are now unfolding against the year's supreme test of your home's hospitality. You think of November and you think of "Thanksgiving Day"—and your dining room. And on a subject like this you cannot think too hard nor too early.

November is the Dining Room Month; and there is more than a suggestion of dining room elegance—and economy—in the showing this store is making.

In these days when "things come high" you will be pleasantly surprised at the number of fine sideboards and buffets we are carrying on the under side of the $25.00 mark, and down to $14.50. Dining tables too; and this nice complete room outfit that we have figured out for our fortunate November Home-makers:—

A MARVEL IN ORGAN BUILDING.

Is Mr. Ernest M. Skinner of Boston, Well Known by Many Bethel People.

We are pleased to note the marked success of Mr. Ernest M. Skinner of Boston, as an organ builder. Mr. Skinner is easily a genius of glass, and though he is yet but a young man, he is fast acquiring a national reputation. In this line of organ building he has acquired such a enviable reputation, it may be said that he is indeed self made. He began when a boy to do a boy's work with an organ manufacturer and has gone forward by leaps and bounds until he owns his factory and is building some of the finest and most unique organs in the world. His work may be found in some of the largest churches in New York and other eastern cities, and the contract to build the organ for the St. John's Divine Cathedral in New York has been given to him.

Mr. Skinner's wife was Miss Mabel Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Hastings of Bethel, for which reason Bethel naturally takes pride in the achievements of this remarkable young man.

The following are two items taken from the "Lewiston Plain Dealer" concerning an organ which Mr. Skinner has recently placed in Trinity Cathedral in Cleveland, Ohio.

One of the most wonderful things in Trinity Cathedral is the new $25,000 pipe organ given by Charles E. Kraft and presided over by Edwin A. Kraft. Very little of the organ can be seen, but it can be heard, for its volume is mighty. The section is concealed to the left of the choir and another to the right. The third section is in the crypt under the church near the Euclid entrance, a distance of 120 feet from the organ, thus allowing the entire building to be literally flooded with sound when so desired.

The organ is operated by electricity and compressed air. There are 850 magnets in the organ, no less than 2,963 pipes concealed, and over 100,000 feet of insulated copper wire used to make connections. There are forty key levers, two sets of pedals and a number of special pedals and stops.

All kinds of music can be produced, the trumpet, brass choruses, tuba, sax and almost every musical instrument being duplicated in tones of the harmonic pipe.

Organ Mingles Many Voices.

"What step is that?" asked a visitor who was listening to the organ in Trinity Cathedral the other day. "That is called the solo," Organist Edwin A. Kraft answered and then smiled, because the beautiful rich note comes from under the bow of a violin in the organ left. He also an imitation of various orchestral instruments may be produced, however, on this wonderful organ, that even reports have been made to distinguish its strains from those of stringed or wind instruments.

Yours, Sax, French horn, and so on, and so on are among the steps which rightly multiplied, almost decrease the listener into believing that Denmark's full orchestra is playing.

LOCKE MILLS.
V. L. S. FAIR.
The Village Improvement Societies' fair held in Mt. Auburn Hall last Thursday evening was without doubt, a success, both socially and financially and the ladies who have toiled through the long summer and fall months regardless of weather, with the idea of making this fair, the fair of all fairs, have reason to feel proud as they certainly do, of the fruits of their labor. The white booths were prettily trimmed with evergreens and green crepe paper, giving a Christmistle greeting to all, and they found ready patronage. The fish-pond and orange tree attracted the little ones, while their elders found amusement in the guess cake, mystery box and various quilts.
The doll contest between four little girls, caused a good deal of excitement, Edith Fisk being the winner. These girls worked wonderfully well, bringing in $30.00.
A short musical program was rendered by Miss Jane Gibson of Bethel, who held her listeners in silence, as she always does by her clear, cultured voice; Mrs. Lola Foster's sweet pleasing voices; Mrs. Lora Foster's clear, pleasing voice; and Harold G. Fletcher will add to the program. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served from an attractive booth.
The receipts of the evening were $119.09 and we thank you all for your help, and for the kind spirit in which it was given.

A Full Sized 75c Bottle of Uric-O. The Only Absolute Cure for Rheumatism Ever Discovered

Write For It Today
We want every man or woman who suffers from Rheumatism and has lost all faith in remedies to write us today for an absolutely free trial of the famous Smith Prescription, Uric-O, for Rheumatism. Uric-O will cure it to stay cured. No faith is required while taking this superb remedy. You take it according to directions, and you will be cured in spite of yourself and any doubts you may have as to its efficacy. We don't ask you to buy Uric-O on faith. We'll buy a large bottle for you and make you a present of it, if you will agree to take it according to directions.
We could not afford to do this if we did not all the confidence in the world in Uric-O, and know that after you are cured you would have no hesitancy about recommending the remedy to all your friends and acquaintances who are suffering from Rheumatism. This is the method that has made Uric-O famous where ever introduced. The cure or several so-called Rheumatic Incurables in a community means a steady sale of Uric-O in that vicinity. Uric-O is good for Rheumatism and Rheumatism only. It acts upon the blood by driving the uric and poisonous rheumatic acid from the system. This is the only way Rheumatism can ever be cured and it is the Uric-O way. Most druggists sell Uric-O, but if you want to test it, cut out this notice and mail it today with your name and address and the name of your druggist to The Smith Drug Co., 210 South 10th St., Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you a full sized 75c bottle free.
Uric-O is sold and personally recommended in Bethel, by W. E. Rosserman means health in later years. As the child builds the adult should be healthy. Neglected children do not grow to vigorous men and women. Childhood complaints yield daily to proper treatment—but they do not correct themselves. The weak stomach, pallid complexion, listless bearing, irritable temper, disturbed sleep, speak plainly of the ailments common to children, most of which have their origin in disordered stomach and bowels.

HEALTH in Childhood

The greatest safeguard to children's health is

Dr. True's Elixir

For indigestion, irritability, constipation, poor appetite, nervousness, fever, stomach and liver troubles and worms in the intestinal tract. Parents of two generations have relied upon it. It restores strength, vivifies health when nothing else will. First it restores the stomach, then acts as a tonic to the digestive tract, builds a new system, restores the blood and sends a glow of health and vigor to every organ and tissue of the body. As no other medicine does, it writes for free booklet "Children and Their Diseases."

Friday The Thirteenth

By Thomas W. Lawson.

Shortly after this talk Bob left for Europe with Beulah. A great German expert on brain disorders had held out hope that a six months' treatment at his sanitarium in Berlin might aid in restoring her mind. They returned the following August. The trip had been fruitless. It was plain to me that Bob was the same hopelessly desperate man as when he left, more hopeless, more desperate if anything than when he warned me of his determination.

When he left for Europe "the Street" breathed more freely, and as time went by there was no sign of his confidence-disturbing influence in the market. The "System" began to bring out its deferred deals. Times were ripe for setting up the most widely inflated stock lambasting traps. It had been advertised through-out the world that Tom Reinhart, now a two-hundred-millionaire, was to recapitalize his and many other enterprises into one gigantic trust with twelve billions of capital. His Union and Southern Pacific railroads, his Southern Lines, together with his steamship company and lead, iron, and copper mines, were to be merged with the steel, traction, gas, and other enterprises he owned jointly with "Standard Oil." Some of the railroads owned by Rockefeller and his pals, in which Reinhart had no part, were to go in too, and with these was to unite that mother hog of them all, "Standard Oil" itself. The trust was to be an enormous company, the like of which had until then not even been dreamed of by the most daring stock manipulators. The "System's" banks, as well as trust and insurance companies throughout the country, had for a long time been getting into shape by concentrating the money of the country in this monster trust. It was newspaper and news bureau gossip that Reinhart and his crowd had bought millions of shares of the different stocks involved in the deal, and it was common knowledge that upon its successful completion Reinhart's fortune would be in the neighborhood of a billion. On October 1st the certificate of the Anti-People's Trust, with a capital of 120,000,000 shares, were listed upon the New York, London, and Boston Stock Exchanges, and the German and French Bourses, and trading in them started off fast and furious at 106. The claim that one billion of the twelve billions capital had been set aside to be used in protecting and manipulating the stock in the market, had been so widely advertised that even the most wary financier did not think of selling it short.

Reinhart's wife and only daughter have been killed in an automobile accident at their place in Virginia. They first had it that Reinhart himself was killed. That has been corrected, although the latest word is that he is prostrated.

I rapped on Bob's private-office door. I felt the coming struggle as I heard his hoarse bellow, "Come in." He stood at the flicker, with the tape in one hand, while with the other he held the telephone receiver to his ear. My God, what a picture for a stage! His magnificent form was erect, his feet were as firmly planted as if he were made of bronze, his shoulders thrown back as if he were withstanding the rush of the Stock Exchange hordes, his eyes a fire with a sudden, smouldering blaze, his jaw was set in a way that brought into terrible relief the new, hard lines of desperation that had recently come into his face. His great chest was rising and falling as though he were engaged in a physical struggle; his perfect-fitting, heavy black Melton cutaway coat, thrown back from the chest, and a low, turn-down white collar formed the setting for a throat and head that reminded one of a forest monarch at bay on the mountain crag awaiting the coming of the hounds and hunters. I hesitated at the threshold to catch my breath, as I took in the terrific figure. Had Bob Browney been an enemy of mine I should have backed out in fear, and I do not confess to more than my fair share of cowardice. Inwardly I thanked God that Bob was in his office instead of on the floor of the Exchange. His whole appearance was frightful. He showed in every line and lineament that he was a man have penetrated to the outer office. "Eighty and coming like a spring freshet," he said into the mouthpiece, "and the boys want to know if I won't let up now that Reinhart is down? Go back and smother them with all they will take down to 60. That's my answer. Tell them if Reinhart had ten more wives and daughters and they were all killed, I'd read his damned trust to help him dull his sorrow. Give the word at every pole that I will have Reinhart where he will cure his luck that the rest of his tribe—" "To hell with sentiment!" He was speaking to me again. "What do you want? If you are here to beg for Reinhart and his pack of yellow curs, you've got your answer. I wouldn't let up on that Bendish byess, not if his wife and daughter and all the dead wives and daughters of every "System" man came back in their grave clothes and begged. I wouldn't let up a share." I gasped in horror. "When did these robbers of men and despoilers of women and children ever let up because of death? When were they ever known to wait even till the corpse stiffened to pluck out the hearts of the victims? It is my turn now, and if I let up a hair may I, yes, and Beulah, too, be damned, eternally damned."

I could not stand it. If I stayed, I, too, should become mad. I reached for the doorknob, but before I could swing the door open Bob was upon me like a wolf. He grasped me by the shoulders and with the strength of a madman hurled me half across the room. I sank into a chair.

"No, you don't, Jim Randolph, no, you don't. You came here for something and, by heaven, you will tell me what it is! You know me; you are the only human being who does. You know what I was, you see what I am. You know what they did to me so make me what I am. You know, Jim Randolph, you know whether I deserved it. You know whether in all my life up to the day those dollar-freighted hounds tore my soul, I had done any man, woman, or

COWS FROM GRASS TO HAY.

Prof. A. L. Haesker, Nebraska, Tells How Change Should Be Made.

Cows are generally taken off pasture some time during the late fall when a big storm is in progress and it becomes necessary to house them. This method, while very natural, is not to be recommended, as the chances are the barn will not be in condition to receive the animals, and such little matters as bedding, feed, stalls, etc., will hardly be in shape for this new condition.

The best method, in my experience, to change stock from pasture to winter feed without causing a shrinkage in the milk flow or a loss in body weight of the animal, is to make such change gradually. A week, at least, should be taken to shift the animal from grass to dry feed or from pasture to winter. Very often during the season of the year when cows are changed the pasture is rather short and sometimes tough and dry, though if fall rains have been plentiful the grass may be in fairly good condition, but somewhat frosty. The cows if allowed access to a rack well filled with hay will begin eating the hay, even while the pasture is good. They will in this way become accustomed to the change gradually and will not suffer as a result of the new ration.

One of the best foods to give immediately after removing from pasture is roots. Beets, turnips or mangels may be fed at this season to the very best advantage. Beets are, as a rule, in the best shape at this season of the year, and may be fed in large rations, as silage or hay would be. A beet ration to a cow on full milk can be made from 15 to 30 pounds daily from four to ten pounds of grain, according to the amount of milk the animal is producing, and its capacity.

When forage or hay is given, it should be to the best quality at this time of the year, for the animal must be tempted with rations of the most palatable kind. If there is some spoiled hay in stack or barn do not feed it at this time, for it will come in much better during the cold winter months, when the animal has naturally a good appetite and is well accustomed to dry food. Keep the cow out of doors as much as possible, that is, stable only when necessary. If the general custom is to stable nights, see to it that the windows and doors are left open, for the season is generally mild during the late fall and early winter and animals will suffer more from close confinement than too much ventilation. Remember that a cow requires as much fresh air as ten people. Then if you are stabling 20 cows in a barn, consider what 200 people could stand in the way of confinement. The atmosphere would be unknown if this were duly considered, and made allowance for.

Several years ago we made a little test to ascertain the effect of stabling as compared with allowing the animal access to the open yard with sheds adjoining. The test was carried on during November, when the nights were cold and frosty. We found in this short test that in every instance where the cows were compelled to sleep in the barn in stalls they did not give as large a yield of milk as when allowed the open air. We were quite surprised about this for the nights were quite cold, though dry. The barn was well ventilated and the animals had plenty of good, dry bedding and were in clean stalls. Nevertheless, a stall is not as comfortable for an animal as the ground, providing it is not muddy or disagreeable.

We make it a practice, when changing from grass to dry feed, of allowing the cows as much liberty as possible in yards or paddocks about the barn, also to get them in the barn only at night, for the season is mild during the late fall and early winter and animals will suffer more from close confinement than too much ventilation. Remember that a cow requires as much fresh air as ten people. Then if you are stabling 20 cows in a barn, consider what 200 people could stand in the way of confinement. The atmosphere would be unknown if this were duly considered, and made allowance for.

who would blatant at KODOL, steps of blatant, if he should find a human obstacle in his road and his mind should suggest murder. He was the personification of the most awful madness. Even when he caught sight of me, he hardly moved, although my coming must have been a surprise.

"He is you, Jim Randolph, is it?" "What brings you here?" His voice was hoarse, but it had a note of ring that went to my marrow. Bob Browney in all the years of our friendship had never spoken to me except in kind and loving regard. I looked at him, stunned. I must have shown how hurt I was, but if he saw it, he gave me sign. His eyes, looking straight into mine, changed no more than if he had been addressing his deadliest enemy.

Again his voice rang out. "What brings you here? Do you come to plead again for that dastard Reinhart after the warning I gave you?"

I clenched both hands until I felt the nails cut the flesh of my palms. I looked at Bob Browney. I would have done anything to make him happy, would willingly have sacrificed my own life to protect his from himself or others, but this madness, this wild brute, was no more Bob Browney as I had known him than the howling harlequin of December is to the gentle, pale-eyed sepher of August. And I felt a resentment at his brutal speech that I could hardly suppress. With a slight sob I crushed it back, trying to think of nothing but his awful misery and the Bob of our college days.

I said in a firm voice, "Bob, is this the way to talk to me in your own of Bob?" At any time before, my words and tone would have touched his generous sensitive charity, but now he said harshly—"To hell with sentiment. What?" He did not take his eyes from mine, but they told me that he was retaining a veto in the matter. Only for a second, then he let loose a wild laugh, which must have done a wrong. You know whether I had and now you are going to speak off and leave me as though I were a bar dog of the Reinhart Standard Oiled breed gone mad?"

He was standing over me, a terrific red and magnificent glare. As he hurled these words at me I was sure he had really lost his mind, that I was in the presence of a man truly mad. Not only for an instant, then my horror, my anger turned to a great, crushing, all-consuming agony of pity for Bob, and I dropped my head on my hands and wept. It is hard to admit it, but it is true—I wept uncontrollably. In an instant the room was quiet except for the sound of my own awful grief. I heard it was advanced of it, but I could not stop. The telephone rang again and again, wildly, shrilly, but there was no answer. The silliness became so oppressive that I got up on my knees, my head on the floor, and I prayed. In my throat choked me, then I slowly raised my eyes.

GREAT WHITE PLAGUE TO BE WARRIED UPON

In Oxford County by Medical Association, More Persons Die of Tuberculosis than All Other Infectious Diseases Combined. Movement Started at Keenford Falls.

At a recent meeting of the Oxford County Medical Association at Keenford Falls, the dangerous and infective nature of tuberculosis was thoroughly discussed and it was decided to make a campaign against it in this county.

The following committee was appointed to prosecute the work: Dr. W. H. Matthews, Keenford Falls; Dr. H. H. Pease, Keenford; Dr. H. H. Stewart, Keenford.

The committee has entered upon the work with vigor and there seems to be every prospect that they will create a wide-spread interest and help in the profession but among the people of the county.

They have drafted and are sending to every physician in the county a letter setting forth the facts that each two out of a hundred people die from tuberculosis in Maine than from all the other diseases combined. Between 1902 and 1903 there were over 1,300 deaths from tuberculosis in the State. The law does not require that cases of tuberculosis shall be quarantined and there is no law that obligates upon anyone to disinfect houses where deaths have occurred from that disease.

Resolves and a memorial according to the association of the physician are of great importance in which case suggestions have been made, including the following: That the committee recommend that a united effort be made to have all houses where tubercular patients have died thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.

By James Nichols of the Maine Health Association writes the committee a strong letter of encouragement and suggests that boards of health should be organized by the municipalities to furnish to all poor persons afflicted with the disease system care and other necessary medical articles.

The speaker is emphatically expressed by the members of the committee that every town should have at the town hall, or other suitable location, a building especially fitted to receive tubercular patients who are unable to provide themselves with proper quarters.

There was recently an outbreak of measles here throughout the great north and south of each quarter, but a law that would have enabled the authorities to have obliged the patient to isolate himself.

A case called on a local physician and was found to be in the last stages of consumption. He was looking out and was unable to provide any other patient for himself than he could in the hospital room.

Although he lost forty-five pounds of weight in less than a month he would not believe he was seriously ill. He would about spitting his tuberculosis from morning and evening. He was finally taken to a hospital where he died about eight days. It is not claimed that this patient could have been cured, but the fact that the committee might have been prevented if the law had enabled the board of health to act in the case.

The importance of the disease and the fact that it is infectious and is caused by germs through the medium of system coughing on the street and on the floor in public places, is not generally understood. The committee are now sending letters to the health boards throughout the county urging them to act in checking better signs of tuberculosis cases.

It is particularly fitting that this movement should begin in Oxford County where it is located the Maine Sanatorium, the best of all the States to deal

MONEY IN BACK YARDS.

Any person can turn the back yard into a profitable source of income and pleasure. Practical money making ideas are given in the book 'How to Profit from the Back Yard'. It is a simple matter to grow fresh vegetables and beautiful flowers all winter in cold frames without heat, and a source of pleasure and profit to have them for yourself, neighbors, the grocery and florist. Few people realize the possibilities of an inexpensive cold frame without fuel, made simply from four old boards in the back yard. The 'How to Profit from the Back Yard' book, published by the National Horticultural Society, N. J., has published plans so simple that any one can get started in this money making business right away and make a big lot of money at little or no expense. They will send any person wanting them at the above address enclosing their two-cent stamp the complete instructions with sufficient seeds to commence with.

COLLEGE MANNERS.

The dean of the woman's department in a western university recently told her undergraduates that they are habitually guilty of various offenses against the laws which govern the well bred. It is wholesome that this criticism should come from within a college, for that brings hope of rational improvement. It has always been true that a community composed chiefly of persons of one sex has a tendency to drop into carelessness of behavior. Colleges have been no exception to the rule. A certain mother had received for daughter a well known college, and went to the town to make the last arrangements for her term and studies. She planned to arrive on the campus at the time of the busy change of classes. She stood on the green, watching the hundreds of young women as they trooped out of recreation rooms and dormitories. What she saw in five minutes caused her to determine to send her daughter to Europe with a tutor, rather than to college. "What was wrong with the girls?" asked a friend, who could not understand what seemed to be a capricious change of plan. "Nothing was wrong," replied the mother. "If there had been any question of morals in the case, I should not have hesitated to trust Mary to stand her ground. But had manners be more subtly contagious than bad morals, I could not bear to think of my daughter among the screaming, straggling, slovenly girls, careless of dress and hair and voice, who swarmed over that campus. Doubtless there were well bred girls there, but they were lost in the crowd. Education of the mind is good, but unless it goes hand in hand with breeding in genteel manners, it makes useless who are neither good citizens nor sweet women—and I want none of such to my family." So, remarks the dean of the woman's department, dress and deportment and preferences of women's colleges they will take to heart the fact that the world now as in the past, is more exacting as to a girl's manners than as to her accomplishments. Nothing would give a greater obstacle to the future spread of the higher education of women than evidence that it is inconsistent with their being in the best sense of that noble word, gentlemen.

COMMENDABLE MOVE MENT.

The national government has acted wisely and well in prohibiting the use of powder in setting forth the advantages that the army and navy possess for furnishing young men with unusual ways of earning a livelihood. There was a talk of dignity that should attend the proceedings of a great nation in this kind of way of treating public affairs, remarks the (Boston Herald), and now that it has been discontinued in favor of more legitimate advertising in the newspapers it is to be hoped that this movement will have a good influence in bringing up to do away with the billboard menace on other directions. There are posters on Great, that are leafy and to the eye and that do no harm, but there are some that are positively disgusting in their filthy and obscene content. The fact that they are often a blot upon a beautiful stretch of rural scenery. The prohibition of the use of them is a step in the right direction, and it is to be hoped that it will be followed by other steps that will give the country a more refined and elevated standard of the past.

Heavy, impure blood makes a muddy, simply complexion, headaches, dizziness, indigestion. Thin blood makes you weak, pale, sickly. Herbol Blood Purifier makes the blood thick, red, pure—restores perfect health.

Careful. A horseman rode on a mountain night down a doubtful road to ward; Not don't mistake and lunge for such a ride a hapless girl.—Houston Post.

A Significant Prayer. "May the Lord help you make back the man's Arnie's hair," says a girl who writes J. O. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. It quickly took the pain out of a frown for her and cured it in a wonderfully short time. "But an earth for me, horse and woman's life. At W. E. Roser's drug store.

Make haste to school, my little child. Or else you will be late; Your books are all scattered near. And here's your sterile state. Your pencil has been balled an hour. The fountain, now, I hope. And don't forget to wash your desk With this carbolic soap.

You'd better put, for safety's sake, Microbicide in the ink. And water that has not been boiled You must not dare to drink.

Of course, when rescue comes around Some folk you'd want to munch. So in this disinfected box Is pronounced lunch.

And sleep 'tis said that in a box Bacteria may be bred; I may not give you, as I'd like, A mother's food farwest.

Make haste to school, my little child. And leave my tender care; And may you still be safely kept From microbes in the air. —Miss Deborah Yale in Life.

Exclusive. Miss Bobby—Is your wash-cup water? Mrs. Schlemmer—Particular! Why do you wash for anybody but the dog? —Detroit Free Press.

Crawford Cooking-Ranges. What Our NEW TYPE of Range Means. Maintaining the Crawford reputation for progress, we have constructed a new type of range which is better than ever our hitherto best. In this new design the useless and awkward 'End Heater' is omitted. The ashes are disposed of by falling into a HOD at the bottom of the range, which makes their removal easier and the grates last longer. The Coal and Ash Hods are side by side, of the same size, and the Ash Hod being emptied can be returned full of coal. There is also more room on top of these ranges. The 'Palace' is extra large size and the 'Castle' smaller. All the famous Crawford features are present: Single Door, Patented Grate, Cap Joint Oven Flues, Automatic-Loaded Oven, Improved Oven Indicator. Send for our booklet. Made by William A. Crawford Co. 100 St. Francis St. Boston. For sale by all leading dealers.
